
V.O.I.C.E Survivor Panel

Voice Of Insight Choice and Empowerment

The VOICE Panel is a survivor-led initiative empowering individuals with lived experience of modern slavery to inform and influence anti-slavery strategies across the West Midlands and beyond.

Who We Are

We bring together individuals with lived experience of modern slavery, creating a platform for partnership and co-production that directly informs, shapes, and strengthens anti-slavery strategies across multiple sectors - including law enforcement, social care, health services, policy, and business.

As a model of meaningful survivor engagement, the VOICE Panel drives collaborative innovation and shared accountability within the region's anti-slavery response.

Why Choose Us

Academic Research

We incorporate the latest academic research to ensure our services are informed, effective, and up to date.

Frontline Professionals

Our team of frontline professionals bring their wealth of hands-on experience to every project.

Survivor Informed

Our work is guided by survivor-informed perspectives, ensuring empathy, relevance, and real-world impact.

Our Services

Policy Review & Development

We assess and provide policy recommendations to ensure they are survivor-centred, trauma-informed, and aligned with best practices.

Training & Capacity Building

We design and deliver training programs for businesses and organisations, equipping them with the tools to respectfully and effectively engage with survivors.

Lived Experience Speakers

Our panel includes experienced speakers who can share their stories to educate and inspire change. They are available for events, training sessions, and awareness campaigns.

Survivor-Centric Language

We guide businesses and stakeholders in adopting language that is respectful, empowering, and avoids re-traumatisation.

The Power of Survivor Leadership

When survivors lead, they bring truth to the forefront, challenge assumptions, and offer solutions that are grounded in lived reality.

Their voices inspire systems to do better, reach deeper, and act more compassionately. Survivor leadership ensures that efforts to combat slavery are not just about people, but shaped with them - empowering those who once had no choice to now shape policy, drive change, and lead the movement forward.

It is not just the right thing to do; it is the most effective path to lasting, meaningful progress. When survivors lead, the world listens, and change becomes unstoppable.

Partner with Us

Partnering with VOICE is a powerful step toward ensuring that your practices are compassionate, informed, and fully aligned with the needs of modern slavery survivors.

By working together, you can contribute directly to the fight against exploitation and help create lasting change.

Whether you're looking to refine your approach, train your team, or develop policies that reflect a commitment to justice, a consultation with VOICE will equip you with the tools you need to make a meaningful impact.

The heart of

West Midlands Anti-Slavery Network

The West Midlands Anti Slavery Network brings together partner organisations to combat modern slavery, human trafficking, and exploitation.

Through direct victim support, identifying gaps, influencing change, and facilitating solutions, we strive to protect and advocate for the vulnerable in our community.
